

Dar es Salaam January 26th, 2006

Wednesday January 26th, 2006

DAY

Today is another day of more Swahili lessons held by mama Jenga. I must admit that she must have a great portion of understanding, listening to us "Mzungo" trying to learn the Swahili word and it's Grammatik's. And the pronouncing of the words not to be forgotten. Janet is really good when it concerns to remember the words, but on the other hand, she is less fortunate when it comes to pronouncing and counting. But as a good team should be, we are supporting each other. The things she's not good at, I am. What a team!

10 years since last used

During the courses we could have the opportunity to have a nice bath in the swimming pool. But, as you can see, the pool is not in a good shape. And the same is valid for the furniture outside. It is amazing that they do not keep things in shape in this country. Seems like nobody care. Strange behavior, isn't it?

Comfortable

EVENING

This evening we were invited for dinner by WFP Country office. The driver (Emanuel) picked us up at the hotel as usual and we went to the Seacliff hotel. The same hotel which I and Janet visited last Sunday.

When we arrived, we saw Karla at the car park and thought that she also was to participate, but she was only there to do some shopping in the store.

The dinner took place in the Calabash restaurant, with excellent service and which is monitored by a South African family. Giancarlo and James from the office participated and we had a fantastic dinner and a very nice small talk this evening.

Mwalimu wangu, mama Jenga